The general decrease in population is due to the famines of the decade, and the malarial fevers, following the famines. The losses were almost entirely among the rural population. Total literates in 1891 exclude "persons under instruction" in this as well as in next table. The fluctuations in the language figures are due to different methods of enumeration. Dialects returned as Mārwāri, Mewāri and Dhundhāri have evidently been largely included in Hīndi at the last census. The increase of persons returned as speaking Ajmeṛi is probably due to more accurate enumeration.

The decrease in the 1891 and 1901 figures is due to famine. The high figures of 1902 point to a reaction, consequent upon returning prosperity and probably also to improved registration.

The largely increased death-rate in 1901 and 1902 was due to the severe fever epidemics which followed the great famine.

Under "culturable but not cultivated" are included the figures for current fallows.
The decrease in the total area shown in 1891-1900 is due to the new survey of the districts in 1882-84, by which the errors of the previous survey were corrected.
Fluctuations are in general due to good or bad seasons.

In 1873-1880 the average for salt has been worked out on 3 years, and in 1881-1890 on 6 years, as the figures for the other years are not forthcoming.

Since the introduction of the railway the prices in the province depend more upon the harvests in the Panjāb and the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh than upon local conditions. The prices during the acute famines have therefore not been omitted in striking the averages for this Statement. The effects of the general famines throughout India may be seen in the prices for 1890-1900 and in 1902-03.

The grain prices in Merwāra are generally lower than those in Ajmer.

Statement No. 13.

Part B.—The prices of certain food grains according to the 20th Issue of the Prices and Wages Volume from the Government of India for Ajmer from 1873-1900 and for 1902.

In this statement the period of acute famine (1899-1900) is omitted in obtaining the average for the decade 1891-1900. The height of the prices notwithstanding shows the succession of poor and indifferent seasons since 1891.

Statement No. 14.

The average monthly wages (in rupees) of skilled and unskilled labour in the Ajmer district.

YEARS.							Able-bodied agricultural labourer.	Sycee or horse keeper.	Common mason, car- penter and blacksmith.
1							2	3	4
1873	7	6.5	7.5 to 13.5
1881	3 to 4	5 to 8	10 to 20
1891	3 to 4	5 to 8	10 to 15
1902	4.69 to 7.5	5 to 8	7.5 to 15

Wages have shown little tendency to rise along with the increase in prices. Those for unskilled labour have been dominated by the ruling wages upon relief works, which is scientifically calculated from a basis representing the subsistence minimum of the workers.

The figures for Ajmer and Beāwar Railway stations alone are given as they are the chief places of export and import. As statistics of road-borne trade are not available, no complete statement of exports and imports is possible for the districts.

The figures for 1881 and 1891 have been taken from the Administration Reports. Those for 1902 have been supplied by the Chief Auditor and Accountant, Rājputāna-Mālwa Railway.

Decrease in exports of cotton in 1902 is due to restrictions placed on export from Mewār to Merwāra which, although removed in 1900, have since affected trade.

* Figures not forthcoming.

Statement No. 17.Mileage and cost of the metalled and unmetalled roads in Ajmer-Merwāra.

YEARS.	MILEAGE OF METALLED AND UNMETALLED ROADS.			COST OF MAINTENANCE OF METALLED AND UNMETALLED ROADS IN RUPEES.			Remarks.

1902 	187	308½	20½	18,112	13,191	2,712

The small expenditure on Local Fund roads during 1901 is due to the fact that many of the roads were repaired by famine labour charged to Imperial Funds. In 1902, a year of local scarcity, the Local Funds undertook extensive repairs with a view to relieving distress by employment of labour.

Total ...	21,25,639	47,64,866

In 1891-92 the cost of village kitchens and poor-houses is included in the figures for "Gratuitous relief." They were used to a very limited extent, and cost only Rs. 434 and Rs. 3,394 respectively.

Of the Land Revenue suspended during the 1898-00 and the 1900-01 famines, Rs. 2,55,000 were remitted later.

chests exported principally to the Punjab. From 1880-81 to 1903 only estimated figures of value of salt consumed (Rs. 1,50,000) have been entered. The excise figures for 1902-03 shown here do not tally with those in Statement No. 29. In this total—which is according to Financial Statement No. 42—certain balances from the preceding years have been included.

Assessed taxes.—In 1880-1890 the average was worked out on 10 years, but Income Tax only commenced in 1886-87. Increase in income from “Interest” in 1902-03 is on account of interest from takāvi advances made during the famine.

“Miscellaneous” include Customs, Registration, Police, Medical, Pensions, Stationery and Printing, Post Office, etc. In 1902-03 the receipts from Customs were Rs. 13,035, but as in the preceding two decades they averaged below Rs. 10,000 they have been included under “Miscellaneous.”

Incorporated Local Funds include the District Fund, Dispensary Fund, Pound Fund and Putwār Fund. The increase in 1902-03 is due to the inclusion of the recently sanctioned Government grant of Rs. 23,000 towards the Putwār and District Funds, and to the recovery of cesses suspended during famine. Excluded Local Funds include the Nasirābād Cantonment Fund, Police Clothing Fund, Police Chanda Fund, Chaukidiri Fund, Rājputāna Veterinary School Fund, Rājputāna Native Hospital Assistants' Reserve Fund, and the Mayo College Fund. Increase in Municipal Funds is due, among other causes, to an increasing population and the raising of limit of octroi refunds.

Expenditure.

For several years in the decade 1880-90 “Law and Justice” figures were included in “Land Revenue.” Hence partly increase in the former and decrease in the latter in the succeeding decade. “Interest” is on account of promissory notes. The item commenced from 1889-90, so there was only one year on which to calculate the 10 years' average.

“Superannuation Pensions, etc.”—The amount is shown under this head since 1892-93 only.

“Public Works.”—These figures are shown separately only since 1883-84. Recent increase is due to famine works.

“Miscellaneous” includes Meteorology, Stamps, Excise, Assessed taxes, Registration, Post Office, Opium assignment, Minor departments, Stationery and Printing, Customs Administration, Civil Works and Settlement charges. Settlement charges, amounting to Rs. 25,000, were only incurred between 1882 and 1884.

The large arrears for 1891-92 and 1892-93 in Ajmer, and in 1891-92, 1892-93, 1893-94 and 1894-95 in Merwāra were due to the famine of 1891-92. The great famine of 1898-1900, and the famine year of 1901-1902 in Merwāra are responsible for the out-standing balances of recent years. The remissions of 1902-03 may be noticed.

Before 1894-95 the annual fixed revenue from istimrārdārs was Rs. 1,24,734-9-11. In that year Rs. 10,000, paid annually by Shāhpura Durbār, were, under the sanction of the Government of India, transferred to the head "Tribute," as paid by other Native States in Rājputāna. The annual fixed demand is now Rs. 1,14,734-9-11.

In the Merwāra villages the Land revenue is fixed: they are only variably assessed in respect of the water revenue. The Ajmer villages, shown as variable, have a variable land revenue, which may or may not be combined with a fixed or variable water revenue. Of the 61 variable villages shown in this Statement 24 have since been given a fixed assessment.

Columns 2, 3, and 4.—Fluctuation due in general to level of prosperity among the people.

The opium farm and vend fees are now for the whole district instead of only for municipal and cantonment areas, as before introduction of the opium rules in 1900.

Column 5.—Now only forfeitures are entered under "Excise" revenue. Fines inflicted by magistrates are credited to "Law and Justice."

Column 6.—Denotes the distillery rent and establishment charges realized from the contractor. The "Sadar" distillery system was introduced in 1887.

Column 8.—Figures shown up to 1885 are on account of sums due to Mārwar-Merwāra and Mewār-Merwāra. The present settlement was made with Mewār in 1881-82 and with Mārwar in 1885.

Loans include Rs. 2,18,000 borrowed from Government in 1892 for the Foy Sāgar water scheme and Rs. 20,000 borrowed in 1897 towards payment of compensation for land taken up for the same tank.

On the side of income under “other sources” are included conservancy receipts (other than taxes), fees from markets and slaughter-houses, miscellaneous sales and income from garden produce. Under “Expenditure on administration and collection of taxes” the largest item is octroi refunds.

The high average of capital expenditure on water supply and drainage between 1891-1900 was due to the construction of the Foy Sāgar reservoir during the period.

Under “other heads” of expenditure the chief items are interest on loans, repayments of loans and expenditure on public gardens.
